We would like to inform that Thailand remains a welcoming MICE destination and that it's business as usual throughout the country. In Bangkok, security has been stepped up as a measure to prevent ill-intentioned people from inciting violence, and business travellers are advised to be vigilant and check travel routing before travelling within the Thai capital to avoid being inconvenienced by movements of security officers and the anti-coup groups.

In Thailand, businesses, including banks, petrol and gas stations, hotels, spas, restaurants, entertainment venues, cinemas, convention centres, shopping malls, superstores and convenient stores are adjusting their operating hours to comply with the situation. The BTS Skytrain and MRT Subway systems in Bangkok are now operating until 23.00 hours while inter-provincial passenger bus services will not be operating during curfew. Hospitals are open and operating as per normal. However, telephone – landline and mobile – and Internet services continue to be available 24/7 as per normal.

All airports in Thailand remain open, and air passengers with arrival and departure flights scheduled during the situation can travel to and from the airports at any time as usual. However, Business travellers with arrival and departure flights are advised to prepare all travel documents when travelling to and from the airports.
